... and the Nazi-loving clergy in a party mood

Above is the Catholic clergy saluting their chief, Adolf Hitler, the god of war, extermination, and Saturnalia of blood. It would appear they chose to ignore the biblical memo, barring Christians from going to war and killing their human brothers. Their fear of man was obviously a lot stronger than their fear of God. Those displaying a true Christian fear of God, the Conscientious Objectors, were real examples of people displaying faith!

"COME JOIN THE CRUSADE AND SEE THE WORLD!"

Peter the Hermit

Peter the Hermit (1050-1115) Roman Catholic priest, motivational speaker, Christian Crusader

"Come join the Crusade and see the world!" Sounds like an attractive advertisement for a cruise, right? Peter the Hermit never actually heralded those particular words, but his fiery gift of the gab certainly stirred up the frenzied masses to follow him into a so-called "Holy War" (First Christian Crusade), a war sanctioned by Pope Urban II. If Peter truly believed in God's Word at Psalms 146:3, which says: "Put not your trust in princes (nobles) nor in the son of man, in whom there is no hope," wouldn't the blood of innocent people have been spared? So... all of you out there reading this are probably thinking to yourselves... "Hmm, but this Peter the Hermit guy, wasn't he a man of the cloth, a man of God? Wasn't he a representative of the Pope, the Head of the Roman Catholic Church, right??? Reaching the Yugoslavian city of Zemun was one indication, above others, that the war where Peter led his army into was not a holy war. It was there where Peter's army accidentally slaughtered 4,000 Christian residents (men, women, and children). And what sparked such an enormous atrocity as that...?

Pope Pius XII (reigned 1939-58) (formally Archbishop Eugene Pacelli)

Pontiff, extortionist, god of war, extermination, racism, and Saturnalia of Blood

Pope Benedict XV commissioned and authorized Archbishop Pacelli, then a papal ambassador, to go to Munich, Germany, in May, 1917, under the sly, diplomatic guise to negotiate a Concordat (Treaty) with largely Protestant Germany. To fully-assist in negotiating an agreement, the Pope authorized the release of 60 cases of gold (over 1,000 gold bars) valued between $80-$100 million U.S. dollars, funds obtained through dishonest means, crime. The gold accompanied Archbishop Pacelli under the shady pretense of being 60 cases of special foods for his delicate stomach. The hidden funds were not intended for supporting the failing German government and military, which was evident as World War I was coming to an end, but supposedly for the support of anti-Communist political movements and sympathizers.

In 1919-20, Archbishop Pacelli actively campaigned to have black French troops removed from the Rhineland (Germany), accusing them of raping women and abusing children. The U.S. Congress held an independent inquiry and proved the allegation false, but this future Pope's racism didn't end there.

In 1943-44, Pope Pius XII, formally Archbishop Pacelli, especially requested the British Foreign Office that no colored troops be garrisoned in Rome after the occupation. For all of you who are still plagued by a nagging curiosity as to what really happened to all the gold that was sent along with Archbishop Pacelli to Germany back in 1917... it was used to fund the rapidly expanding Nazi Party, including its first reform as a paramilitary organization in 1921.

JUST WHEN YOU THOUGHT IT COULDN'T GET ANY WORSE... IT DOES!

(1920-1945) Archbishop Pacelli (later Pope Pius XII) and the Jesuit order under the control of Superior-General Wlodimir Ledochowski helped form the Deutsche Arbeiterpartei (German Worker's Party), DAP for short, into the National Socialist German Worker's Party (NSDAP), also known as the Nazi Party. Archbishop Pacelli mentored Hitler into joining DAP, and it was Archbishop Pacelli who financially supported Hitler's rise to Chairman of the NSDAP. The purpose of the Nazi Party, as formed by the Catholic Church, was to (1) establish a pro-Catholic political party capable of defeating its opposition and gaining control of government; (2) establish a concordant between the Catholic Church and the whole of Germany guaranteeing a massive financial pipeline in compensation for losing the papal states (this mega-cash cow Church tax still generates billions of dollars to this day); and (3) the elimination of all opposition including social reform/democratic minded groups, especially Protestants, Communists, and ethnic Jews.

In 1921, on instruction from Superior-General Wlodimir Ledochowski, Archbishop Pacelli instructed Adolf Hitler to establish a paramilitary wing to the NSDAP to be known as the Sturmabteilung (SA). Hitler was instructed to take his paramilitary organization and begin using Jesuit priests to fully train them in espionage, Counterintelligence, assassination, and propaganda. The purpose of the SA was to assist in the control of organized protests, riots, intimidation of opponents, and political assassinations. The Germans used Storm Troopers as far back as World War I, but this elite group became more prominent in association with the SA for their covert skills during WW2.

(1929-1945) A secret agreement by Superior-General Wlodimir Ledochowski, and later confirmed by Pope Pius XII upon his ascension to the throne, gave SS officers of the Nazis spiritual powers of Jesuit priests, regardless of whether they were married or not. By 1939, and upon the power of the Pope, these actions of conferring priestly powers to SS officers active in the Final Solution (extermination), was in full knowledge of their orders and acts of barbarity and inhumanity.

(1939-1945) Pope Pius XII, with the full knowledge and support of Ledochowski, handed to Hitler and Himmler stringent details for the systematic elimination of key non-Catholic minorities across Europe, as well as the establishment of death camps, for their murder. The Pope also instructed that ethnic Jews and other heretics were not simply to be murdered, but ritually sacrificed by being burnt alive, which he deemed consistent with Church law on the penalty of heresy. The German commanders came up with a plan using Zyklon-B to render the victims unconscious in the gas chambers. They were then restrained unconscious and carted to the furnaces, and, when they regained consciousness, were burnt alive in those furnaces. In 1943, the Nazis entered Rome and the Germans began deporting over 1,000 Jews who lived near the Vatican. Hitler openly invited the Pope to criticize him for this act, but the Pope declined, thus sealing the doom of those Jews who were sent to Auschwitz for burning. Pope Pius XII never once apologized for failing to stop the deportation. During World War II, Jews in Poland were being burned alive in barns, which numbered some 1600 men, women, and children (i.e. Massacre of Jedwabne).

JESUITS

Pope Clement XIV in the throes of death

The Jesuit order may have been sly in keeping their dirty little secrets under wraps from the General Public for centuries, but the fact of the matter is, you can only mask the smell of excrement for so long before the full extent of its stench will ultimately rise to the surface! So, what was No. 1 on their list of dirty little secrets? Meddling in the affairs of politics, no less! The Jesuits may have found themselves at home (so perfectly-orchestrated and hidden) inside Adolf Hitler's regime, but way back, they almost ceased to exist.

Pope Clement XIV (reigned 1769-1774) Two years after hearing about the Jesuits being kicked out of Brazil, France, Spain, and Portugal in the years up to 1767, it was now the Pontiff's turn to rid Italy of that religious thug-like order, who were out-of-order when it came to their own ideologies and agendas that they aggressively tried to inject into the policies of European and South American governments. In July of 1773, Pope Clement XIV dissolved the Jesuit order. After doing so, and with full-knowledge of the Jesuit's capability for reprisal, the Pontiff remarked: "I may just have signed my own death warrant." And so he did! By September of the following year, the Pope was dead, having been poisoned.

The Society of Jesus (Jesuits) was created by Ignastius Loyola, a hard-fighting Catholic and military man who framed his life around heroic stories of El Cid, Knights of Camelot, and the Song of Roland. He thought nothing of running anyone through his sword who questioned Christ as being a divinity. Ignastius Loyola turned his attention towards becoming a priest only after his legs were smashed by a cannonball, but even with that, the forceful nature of his military training soon was enthused into the members of his own little band of brothers (assassins equal to the "Dagger Men"—Sicarii). So, from afar, it looked as if the Jesuit order was left out in the cold, thanks to the deceased Pope Clement XIV, but, in 1814, along came another Pontiff, Pope Pius VII, who restored the Jesuit order to its former glory—hit men for the Vatican!

THE CATHOLIC CONSPIRACY

(Assassination of President Abraham Lincoln)

U.S. President Abraham Lincoln

Pope Pius IX

To understand the facts behind the assassination of President Lincoln, all one needs to do is follow the trail of connections, starting with who had the strongest motive for his kidnapping (which failed) and his death. It would be so easy to just cry out “the Abolitionists, right?” But let’s not forget there’s an old saying which goes: “The eyes are a window to the soul.” The picture of Lincoln shows a man awaiting a destiny he cannot change, and I’m not talking about the Civil War or Abolition of Slavery. The picture of the pontiff shows a guilty man hiding a dark secret that he thinks God cannot see, let alone mortal man. Let’s first examine the man with a motive too big to ignore.

Pope Pius IX (1846-1878) This pontiff, like so many after him, hated with a sheer-loathing, the fact that the Vatican lost the Papal States in a war supported by the U.S. To further rub salt into the wound, Italian General Garibaldi was welcomed as a hero by Protestant America. The U.S. supported the liberation of Italy so much that it contributed to its success by supplying soldiers and money. The President was already in the Pope’s bad books for once legally representing a Canadian Catholic priest, Charles Chiniquy, who, after serving in the Roman Catholic Church for fifty-years, wanted out, blaming the Catholic Church was wrong for worshipping the Virgin Mary. The pontiff knew that the older Jesuits wanted to keep slaves on their plantations, while the younger priests wanted to sell them to help pay for building institutions.

John Surratt Jr. (Confederate spy, assassin) Surratt’s mother was hung for being a co-conspirator in the assassination of President Lincoln, and Catholics were seen entering her boardinghouse prior to Lincoln’s death. John was implicated in the plan to kidnap the President, but upon learning that he was to be arrested in connection with the assassination, he fled to Canada, and then sought sanctuary under the protection of his surrogate mother hen, Pope Pius IX, by being given the job of a pontifical zouave (papal guard). He was later caught, shipped back to the U.S., where he escaped a hanging due to a legal glitch.

President Abraham Lincoln was quoted as saying:

“... it is not against the Americans of the South, alone, I am fighting. It is more against the Pope of Rome, his perfidious Jesuits and their blind and bloodthirsty slaves that we have to defend ourselves.” Lincoln, while contemplating his own destined demise by a force he knew was unstoppable, spoke of “Jesuit Revailac” (Francois Revailac) who murdered Henry IV, the King of France. He added “The Jesuits are so expert in their deeds of blood.”

Charles Chiniquy

Are there other Popes who have gone down in history that have acted in a manner of the Mafioso? Yes! The Pazzi Conspiracy involved the pedophile Pope Sixtus IV back in 1478. He was the leader of a small group of co-conspirators who organized a plan to assassinate members of the de' Medici family hoping to oust them from being the rulers of the Renaissance in Florence, Italy. The Church only managed to kill one of the two men targeted for elimination. The other co-conspirators were a Pazzi family member, and, last but not least, the Salviati, Papal bankers. Ouch! The outcome meant the de' Medici family kept their position, the Pazzi family were kicked out of Florence, and the Pope continued being the Pontiff...and a pedophile!

CATHOLIC USTASE

In order to exterminate ethnic and religious minorities, atrocities at the notorious Jasenovac (Croatian) concentration camp during and after 1941 were egged on by Franciscan friars. One of those evil friars was that of Tomislav Filipovac, known as "Fra Sotona" ("Friar Satan") who ran the camp. His Catholic-based killer squads murdered between 49,000 and 600,000 people. Filipovac was later hanged wearing his clerical garb. Roman Catholic Archbishop Ivan Saric supported the brutality of the Ustase. One Catholic priest, Mate Mugos, wrote that the clergy should put down the prayer book and take up the revolver. Another priest, Dionysius Juricev, wrote in the Novi list that to kill children under seven years of age was not a sin.

Ante Pavelic Croatian, fascist, military dictator

Pavelic was head of the Ustase, which was a kind of religious-based Croatian Gestapo. If this man was alive during the first Christian Crusade, he no doubt would have led the charge into battle. Ante Pavelic's deadly friars were nothing less than an extension of his vicious and ultra-violent rule that had no respect for human rights and dignity. It would not be hard to imagine that any Pope, head of the Roman Catholic Church, would go above and beyond "their" call of duty to distance themselves from such a sadistic and immoral tyrant as this, right? Not so with Pope Pius XII. He, like the other Pope Pius who gave sanctuary to John Surratt Jr., did warmly give sanctuary to Ante Pavelic, who arrived at the doors of the Vatican dressed as a priest! That really should have been the official start date for Halloween! Could it get any worse than that? You betcha!!! The Pontiff also set up Ratlines (escape routes) for Ante Pavelic, Adolf Eichmann, and the Nazi monster, Josef Mengele.

FINALE DE LA EXPOSE'

John Wycliffe (1320-1385) Theologian, Bible-translator, reformer, Oxford professor

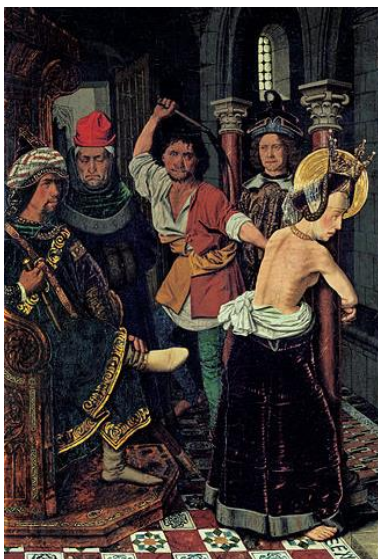

Professor Wycliffe thought highly of ones who practiced what they preached, but had little patience for hypocrites, and didn't hold back from attacking the privileged status of the Catholic clergy. He was strongly opposed to idolatry in worship and the veneration of saints. This accomplished university professor had a sheer loathing for monasticism, and even attacked the very existence of the Papacy. While other writers viewed the Black Plague of 1348 as God's judgment on a sinful people, Wycliffe saw it as an indictment of an unworthy clergy. He maintained a firm view that all Christians should rely on the Bible rather than on the teachings of Popes and clerics, and added there was no scriptural justification for the Papacy. The professor called friars and monks "pests of society, enemies of religion, and patrons and promoters of every crime, motivated by temporal gain". Wow! All that and not a Jesuit in sight! If there had been a Jesuit in sight, now there's a Pay-Per-View kickboxing bout I wouldn't mind paying to watch!

Professor Wycliffe expressed a strong belief in what he called the "invisible Church of the elect" rather than in the "visible" Catholic Church. His fearless attacks against the Church reached an all-time high when he indirectly made a comparison of the Pope and the Antichrist. After a few swigs of cognac, he may also have uttered the words: "Better the devil you know than the devil you don't!" But don't quote me on that! How Wycliffe avoided being burnt at the stake is a miracle in itself. It wasn't until after the professor died of a stroke at the age of 64, and enduring so many long years of verbal Church abuse did Pope Gregory XI's minions finally track down where Wycliffe was buried, dug up his remains, and toss them into the River Swift... and yes, that is the name of the river!
